That mysterious animal that has been described at different times as a panther, a wolf and a bear, and may be somebody's big roving dog is again reported as seen in the woods east of Danielson. The yarn has been so frequently repeated as to cause the belief among some timid people that a wild beast is roaming at large in the vicinity. Whether the story be true or otherwise, this skulking terror is sensible enough not to make its appears ance to anyone carrying a gun. He always is seen under conditions favorable to a speedy and gafe escape.

Mr. Miller has been in failing health for several months and was ill during his last visit to Danielson to attend the funeral of his father, eight weeks ago. Since that time his decline has been rapid. Mr. Miller was born in Danielson, July 21, 1860, the son of James and Elizabeth Miller. The early years of Mr. Miller's life were spent in this place. Later, as an organist and teacher of music he became widely and favorably known. He had been organist in churches in New York and Brooklyn, Albany and Poughkeepsie. At the time of his death, Mr. Miller had sixty pupils. He is survived by his wife. Miss Florence Miller of Mechanic street is a niece of the deceased. Mr. Miller was the last of his immediate family.
